

I understand that the Consumer Bankers Asso. is challenging Indiana's Telephone Privacy law. There is no justifiable reason for weakening the existing law. I don't want to be bothered with these telephone calls at home. Information concerning my business with banks, etc. can be included with statements or other correspondence. I signed up under the existing law so I wouldn't be bothered with unwanted calls. I am capable of determining that any change to the existing law will result in unwanted calls. Please, please, please do not change the existing law. Thank you.
